

Click here for Drug Free Work Week Tips

With Drug-Free Work Week now four months away, we encourage you to consider including the campaign in your editorial planning. To help, several ready-to-use “drop-in” articles suitable for a variety of organizations and publication formats are available.

For trade, business and professional associations and unions, both feature-length articles and short blurbs are available. To access these, click on the appropriate link below:

Article for association publications – short

Article for association publications – long

Article for union publications – short

Article for union publications – long

Individual employers and employer service providers can take advantage of one or more articles for employees for use in internal newsletters or on company intranets.

Of course, if you haven’t yet started to plan your Drug-Free Work Week activities, the time to do so is now! To get going, check out the Drug-Free Work Week Web site’s lists of ideas for employers and employees; associations and unions; and community coalitions and neighborhood organizations.

Drug-Free Work Week is led by the U.S. Department of Labor’s Working Partners for an Alcohol- and Drug-Free Workplace program. For more information about steps you can take to ensure your workplace is safe and drug free -- every week -- visit the Working Partners Web site.

Safety is our goal and compliance is our business!